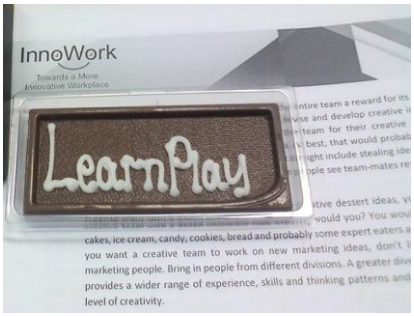
PRESS RELEASE



The 3rd partners' work meeting of the project Towards a More Innovative Workplace (InnoWork), project number: 2014-1-BG01-KA202-001634 took place in the period 10-11th September in West Bromwich, United Kingdom. Host of the meeting was the UK partner LearnPlay Foundation.

Participants in the meeting were representatives of all partner organizations involved in the consortium: ECQ (Consultancy company, Bulgaria), CCI-Vratsa (Chamber of commerce and industry-Vratsa, Bulgaria), MERIG (Research institute, Austria), VAMK (University of applied sciences, Finland), AidLearn (Training provider, Portugal) and Kaunas STP (Science and technology park, Lithuania).

The aim of the meeting was to discuss the progress of the development of InnoWork curriculum, training materials and guidelines as well as to outline the interactive learning games and exercises that will be embedded in the learning materials.

The draft versions of the all ten training modules are now available for peer review and refinement. The final versions of the materials are scheduled for January 2016. They will be available in all partners' languages (English, Bulgarian, German, Finnish, Portuguese and Lithuanian) and also on the project website www.innowork-project.eu.

The next phase of project implementation is the pilot testing when partners will work with SMEs to develop innovation strategies for their companies. In this process they will step on the developed training materials that will support business representatives in creating a more innovative workplace.
